SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY TWIN BROTHERS MEET

Twin brothers celebrated their seventieth birthday at Regina yesterday. J. F. Hunter, formerly Baptist minister at Blaimore, later customs officer here and in Calgary, now of Drumheller, met his brother, Harry F. Hunter at the Saskatchewan capital, where the latter has resided for thirty-five years.

The twins were born at Rockside, Peel County, Ontario, but before coming west they also lived in Bruce county.

J. F. Hunter retired to his ranch near Drumheller two years ago.

ONTARIO AND ALBERTA (ON SOCIAL CREDIT)

In regards to Social Credit, the editor of the Claresholm Local Press on his recent trip to Ontario says:

"Of course everybody wanted to know what Social Credit was all about, and what kind of crazy people we Albertans were to take up such funny notions all the time. One financial man in the east said to us 'we figure Alberta has been one of the best administered provinces in the dominion, with the exception of the fact that they have a farmers' government'. Apparently the people in the east still hold to the opinion that farmers are an inferior class of people."

Arthur M. Denmore, of the Lundbreck Trading Co., was a visitor to town on Tuesday.

DOMINION DAY WILL BE A GALA ONE IN BLAIRMORE

Arrangements are about complete for the monster Dominion Day celebration, to be held at the Blaimore Stadium on Monday next. Committees have their work down well, and hope to pull off the day's programme without a hitch. The olympic track, the only recognized track in Southern Alberta, will be in A-1 shape.

Word has been received from intending visitors and competitors from all points between Kimberley and Medicine Hat, and north to Calgary, so that Blaimore can look forward to the biggest and best day in its history, provided, of course, the weather man acts kindly.

The programme of the day will start at 10 a.m. with children's events, while major events, such as baseball, football, softball, marathon races, etc., will prove popular attractions throughout the day.

The playdowns for the baseball tournament started on Wednesday evening, when Hillcrest met Michel-Natal, the former winning. The second game takes place this evening between Bellevue and Blaimore, and the final will form a part of the big programme of July the 1st.

An added feature to the programme is expected. Mr. Pearson, a box-lacrosse enthusiast, will bring two teams down from Calgary, to appear in the Blaimore arena at 8 p.m. Monday, giving an exhibition of this great game. The teams plan to appear at Lethbridge on Saturday and Coleman on Sunday.

Refreshment booths will be operated on the grounds all day Monday. It is also intended to have on the grounds a fully equipped First Aid tent.

For further particulars, see large posters and programmes. One thousand of the latter are being donated by The Enterprise.

LETHBRIDGE GIRLS' SOFTBALL TEAM TO PLAY HERE

Among the teams competing in the ladies' softball tournament here on Monday next, in connection with the annual Dominion Day sports programme, will be Urbane Doughty's Lethbridge Aces.

A group of players of junior age, they are competing in a higher division this season, mainly through the fine work of grooming done by their coaches, Urbane Doughty and Doug McElgunner. This year, they have set the Alberta intermediate championship as their goal.

Their outstanding coach-manager, Mr. Doughty, has made a real reputation for himself in the development of junior feminine athletic talent, until today—yet a young man—he is recognized as one of the most outstanding coaches of junior material in Western Canada. He has a pitching staff which ranks second to none in the south, and a very well balanced infield. The entire unit are known as dangerous hitters.

The team will spend Sunday in Blaimore, resting up for the stiff holiday programme.

Owing to the absence of a large part of the teaching staff, there will be no Sunday school at the United church on Sunday next, June 30th, which will close on that date for the summer holiday months.

Dr. George Alan Harcourt, geologist, son of Prof. George Harcourt of the University of Alberta, and a brilliant graduate of that institution, has been appointed to the faculty of Harvard University.

Mr. Geo. Hood and Miss Richards, of Edmonton, are spending a few days here with Mr. and Mrs. J. McPhail. They were accompanied on the trip by Mr. Hood's mother, Mrs. J. Hood.

WILLIAM ABERHART TO BE HEARD AT BELLEVUE

Posters will be out tomorrow (Friday) announcing a public meeting to be held in the Bellevue Arena on Wednesday evening next, July the 3rd, at 8 o'clock, to be addressed by Mr. William Aberhart, the practical founder of the Alberta Social Credit League. A collection will be taken to defray expenses.

On asking the Bohemian proprietor if there was anything he required, he advanced to the sauer kraut barrel and, raising the lid, remarked: "No, mister, 'nough for three weeks yet. Burns' man he take order Monday, and Booth, the Swift' man, he take big order today for every-

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

The motor car age is finding its old competitor still going strong. In Conway, Missouri. Thirty hitching posts are being erected in the business district to accommodate those who still drive horses.

A paper circle, two inches in diameter and cut from a plain playing card, is expected to fetch nearly $15,000. The card bears on its back a miniature portrait painted by Holbein the Younger during the reign of Henry VIII.

Evangeline Booth, commander-in-chief of the Salvation Army, said she will visit Canada and the west coast of the United States next September. The visit will be part of the army's "two years—two million souls campaign."

Preparation of motion picture films to be used for educational purposes in small towns and rural communities in the fight against fire hazards was discussed at a meeting of the Canadian Association of Fire Marshals in Ottawa.

All weather highway between Edmonton and Jasper, and travelling work on the trans-Canada road between Calgary and Banff will be completed this year, according to Premier George Hoadley announced at Edmonton.

A government bill empowering the finance minister to float loans to a maximum of $750,000,000 was passed by the House of Commons. It was expected the government would use the money for a refunding program when it was favorable this fall.

A drop of more than $3,000,000 was shown in the total deposits of the Bank of Canada during the week ended June 12, according to the Bank of Canada statement recently issued. The reserve in United States funds for the same period declined by more than $2,225,000.

Seven-year-old Mickey Teahan of Richmond, Ont., weighs 50 pounds, and when he hooked a 48-pound muskallunge in the Ottawa river near Lake Deschenes he was almost pulled into the river. Mickey's father came to his rescue and the muskie was landed.

One Way To Save Money

Cash Register Drawer Sticks And Reveals $291 Deposit

Lawson McKague, general merchant, of Viceroy, Sask., is richer by $291. He has been putting small change into a savings bank but didn't know it.

The drawer on the cash register in his store had been balky for several weeks. It hadn't closed as it should when it was pushed shut. A short time ago a Regina traveller dropped in and offered to repair the machine. The traveller really got the drawer open and 500 or more dimes tinkled to the floor. Further investigation revealed the register was so bunged with silver the drawer couldn't close. Several customers in the store helped him get it out. When counted it was $291. The dimes, some nickels and a dollar bill, weighing 14 pounds in all.

The silver had slipped through a crack in the back of the till. The storekeeper had often found dimes and nickels and dollar bills, but didn't know the till was "leaking." The silver had accumulated over the past ten years.

First Camp Fire Word

Scientists Discover Primitive Chinese Chose Redbud Tree

When Peking Man, earliest known human of China, chopped wood for his campfire 100,000 years ago, he chose a red bud or Judas-tree, according to botanists at the Geological Society of China after training microscopes on remains of the oldest known fire laid by human hands.

Cross-sections of bits of charred wood from Peking Man's hearth are identified by their structure as a new species of Cereus. This tree would be a reddish, akin to modern redbuds that flower with purplish-red blossoms in the spring in America and the Orient.

Under New Grading System

During the first five months of this year almost 30,000 pigs were sold in Canada under the new rail grading system whereby the farmer is paid for his hogs after they have been hung on the packing house rail. Around 85 per cent of these hogs made grade "A" and 15 per cent grade "B," with "C," "D," "E" lights, heavier, and some making up the rest in varying small amounts.

Food By Telegraph

Easy Now To Send Basket Of Groceries By Wire

Add to your grocery list—telefood. So if a uniformed messenger brings a big mess of spinach to your door, blame a friend who may live on the other side of the continent.

Sponsors of the plan, attending the convention of the National Association of Retail Grocers at Indianapolis, explained it will be as easy to telegraph a basket of groceries as to wire a bouquet of flowers.

If it's spinach, you might wire back some broccoli.

Lobster Production

Canada Provides Nearly The Whole Of The World's Supply Of The Canned Product

Off the coast of Canada's Atlantic provinces the world's greatest lobster-producing area is located, and every year more than 300 canneries draw from these resources the raw material from which they produce one of the tastiest of sea foods. In recent years an increasing part of the Canadian catch has been marketed alive—"shipped in the shell" is another way of saying it—but most of it, however, still goes into cans. In the past five years the annual pack put up in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, and Quebec, has averaged, in round figures, 137,000 cases containing 48 standard-size cans each.

Lobster canning involves a number of different operations, and Canadian lobster canneries are required by law to measure up to certain standards as to sanitation, equipment, and methods. Their operations are subject to inspection under the Meat and Canned Foods Act, which is one of the reasons they turn out so excellent a product. Canada supplies all but a very small part of the world's production of canned lobsters.

It takes 7,000 pounds to make the 21 cases of lobster currently over United States rails.

World Needs Peace Assurance

President Roosevelt Says Mutual Understanding And Regard

Is Needed

Greatest current need of the world is "the assurance of peace—an assurance based on mutual understanding and mutual regard," President Roosevelt asserted before the graduating class of the United States military academy. "We maintain an army to promote tranquility," the president said, "and to secure us from aggression, but it is so created and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended."

Engagement Was Kept

Speaker Unable To Attend Meeting Sent Talking Film

Finding at almost the last minute that pressure in the House of Commons would keep him from making a political speech in Rugby, England, Captain David Margesson, the Government Chief Whip, sent a talking picture substitute. He hurried to a film studio, delivered the speech and rushed the film to Rugby. It was the first time in England that a "talking" kept a public engagement for the principal speaker at a political meeting.

Our Social Duty

There is something wrong when crime takes place in frequented streets and eye-witnesses have nothing to tell about it. It is a natural impulse to avoid being "mixed up" in a sordid case, but it is not the less a social duty to support the law by assisting the police in every possible way. For we are all "mixed up" in the fate of ordered society, which requires every man's protection on every necessary occasion.

Airplane pilots for private planes in England now receive salaries ranging from $5,000 to $7,500 a year.

For Better Understanding

Will Examine Relationship Between Canada And U.S.

Sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, St. Lawrence University and Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., the laboratory will be known simply as "the conference on American-Canadian affairs."

The conferees figuratively will take apart the international mechanism that runs Canadian-American affairs and put it together again. An educational laboratory for examination of the relationship between Canada and the United States was set up at St. Lawrence University. Into it will walk 50 or more prominent Canadians and Americans with the announced intention of seeking common factors for understanding and friendship.

The program involves the building of 12 miles of new subways, the electrification of 44 miles of suburban railway, the double-tracking and electrification of about 12½ miles of other suburban lines, and the substitution of "trolley buses" for street cars on 148 route miles.

London's Transport System

To Spend $170,000,000 In Five-Year Program

Thirty-five million pounds—approximately $170,000,000—will be spent in a five-year program for the improvement and extension of London's transport system. The necessary loans will be backed by government guarantee.

The program involves the building of 12 miles of new subways, the electrification of 44 miles of suburban railway, the double-tracking and electrification of about 12½ miles of other suburban lines, and the substitution of "trolley buses" for street cars on 148 route miles.

Tax Will Affect Canada

On the basis of the last fiscal year's exports the new three per cent, ad valorem import tax which, according to Home despatches, Italy has now imposed will affect Canadians to the extent of $108,000 a year. Canadian exports to Italy last fiscal year had a value of $3,630,630.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JUNE 30

LIBERTY UNDER LAW

Golden text: It is good not to eat flesh, nor to drink wine, nor to do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth. Romans 14:21. Lessons: Romans 14:13-21. I Corinthians 8:1-13. Devotional reading: Galatians 5:16-24.

Explanations And Comments

Our Responsibility for Our Brother. Romans 14:13. "But thou, why dost thou judge thy brother?" questions Paul in the preceding verses "or thou again, why dost thou set at naught thy brother?" For we must all stand before the judgment seat of God.

"I may feel at perfect liberty to drink wine. Had I only myself to consider, and knowing that my temptation does not lie that way, I might use wine regularly or as often as I felt disposed to enjoy a needed stimulant. I may feel quite convinced in my own mind that morally I am not one whit the worse for doing so. But I cannot determine whether I am I indulge myself or not without considering the effect my conduct will have on others. There may be among my friends some who know that their temptation lies that way, and whose conscience dies then altogether refrain. If by my example such persons are encouraged to silence the voice of their own conscience, then I incur the incalculable guilt of helping to destroy a brother for whom Christ died." (Marcus Dods).

The Important and the Unimportant, verses 17-19. For the Kingdom of God, the reign of Christ over men, is not eating and drinking; the important matters are righteousness, peace and joy in the Holy Spirit.

—through his indwelling. "Religion is love and joy and peace in the Holy Ghost; the cheerful thing in the world; it is inconsistent with moroseness, sourness and with what is not according to the gentleness of Christ Jesus." (John Wesley). He who serves Christ in this way is pleasing to God and man. So then let us pursue things that make for peace and things whereby we may improve one another, that is, let us consider what effect upon others our conduct will have.

Cotton Grows Ten Feet

Farmers In Texas Are Trying Out New Variety

Farmers near Edinburg, Texas, await appearance of a new variety of cotton which is said to attain a height of 10 feet and produce an extra long fibre. It is known as "Axtel cotton."

Seedlings already have sprouted, but they have not developed sufficiently to enable farmers to determine the nature of the plant. Approximately 30 farmers have planted acreage in the new variety.

The "Axtel" seed is rare and Edinburg growers are under contract to return all seed from the 1935 crop to the original owners.

According to reports, the seed was found in an Indian cave in Colorado. The discoverer planted the seed and was amazed to find that the stalk grew 10 feet tall.

Take Pay In Water

Members of the town council of Waukomis, Oklahoma, have voted salaries for themselves—payable in water. The city's "liquid" assets with each member will receive free 1,000 gallons a month from the municipal plant.

Little Journeys In Science

IODINE

(By Gordon H. Quest, M.A.)

Iodine was discovered in 1812 by the French scientist, Courtois, who obtained it from the mother liquor of salts produced from burnt seaweed, or kelp. When the liquid was heated with sulphuric acid in a retort, a violet vapor was produced, which condensed in the form of brilliant crystals. Shortly after this discovery the name iodine was proposed for this substance because it comes from the Greek word for violet.

Iodine occurs in sea-water, in sea-plants and sea-animals, and in the thyroid gland of man and of animals. Most of the iodine of commerce is obtained from a compound called sodium iodate, which is found in small quantity in Chile saltpetre, or crude sodium nitrate.

Iodine is a shining, blackish-grey solid, which is nearly five times as heavy as water. It has a strong, rather unpleasant odour, and changes to the vapour state even at ordinary temperatures. It is quite soluble in alcohol and in a water solution of potassium iodide. We are all familiar with iodine in the form of tincture of iodine, which contains more or less than iodine crystals dissolved in alcohol. A very small quantity of iodine colours starch solution a deep blue and this is an exceedingly delicate test for the element.

Iodine is used in the manufacture of certain dyes and drugs which are very helpful to man. The largest consumer of iodine is the photographic industry which uses the two compounds, silver iodide and potassium iodide, in large quantities.

Iodine is an essential constituent of the body. A small gland known as the thyroid gland contained in the bunch of cartilage at the front of the throat, usually designated as Adam's apple, produces a compound known as thyroxin which contains about 8.5% of iodine. Iodine is not present in the diet the thyroid gland cannot produce this compound and hence goitre results. Iodine is now prepared for table use, the small amount of sodium iodide present in the salt being considered sufficient to guard against a natural deficiency in the regular food. Iodine is supplied by certain foods, such as spinach, lettuce, string beans, butter, and milk.

Don't Let One Fly Escape

Constitute A Deadly Menace And Must Not Be Tolerated

Do you know that one fly lays one hundred to two hundred eggs in one hour? It doesn't take much imagination to figure out the consequences if a few flies are allowed to roam around.

Of course, you and I loathe flies because they are so annoying and disgusting, but though we all have an urge to get rid of them, we are not all over careful of preventing their breeding.

All garbage and refuse must be covered or burned, manure, rotting leaves kept well from dwellings and all surroundings kept as scrupulously clean as possible. However, tins of condensed milk, cans of food around somewhere. Screens on doors and windows will help to keep them out of the house. The exposed food should be kept covered.

A few Wilson's Fly Pads, used regularly during the warm weather, in home or store will all the flies that happen to get in if used according to directions.

Medical authorities and scientists have proved by the most careful tests that the common house-fly breeds deadly diseases such as typhoid, diarrhoea, the dreaded warm weather complaint that claims the lives of so many little children.

Flies are a deadly menace and must not be tolerated. A fly will come straight from a heap of filth and settle on food or drink, if the latter is not protected, spreading disease which may cause a death right in your own home. The citizens who have any regard for the welfare of their neighbors and community will wage unremitting war against fly pests and Wilson's Fly Pads will be of invaluable assistance in their efforts.

Nova Scotia Very Scotch

Parliament Is Always Opened By Skirl Of Bagpipes

Nova Scotia, the land of Longfellow's "Evangeline" and popularly because of that poem to be largely French and English, is largely Scottish. The opening of Nova Scotia's Parliament is accompanied by the skirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Nova Scotia county of Inverness, 72 per cent of the inhabitants speak Gaelic. More than half of the similarly named county in Scotland can speak that ancient tongue. —Provincial News Bureau.

PATTERN 5224

Tulips—how we enjoy the beauty and variety of their color. Here we find them translated into striking cutwork, that needlework that is so handsome and so durable. This design has no bars—and plenty of opportunity for color. You can do it all in one color or white, of course, but it is especially effective with the tulips done in varied colors and the leaves in green. You can make a striking cushion of the larger piece or a handsome buffet or chair back set of the three pieces.

In pattern 5224 you will find a transfer pattern of the basket 10 1/2 inches and one and one reverse of the small pieces 8 1/2 inches; complete instructions for doing cutwork; illustrations of all stitches needed and material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newsprint Union, 1715 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-bell, a gay, freeparting girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. Now Go On With The Story

"Sensible man! All this education business is stuff and nonsense unless it is a boy to earn his living, which is nine times out of ten it doesn't do. Look at Matthew Adam. His people scrimped and saved to send him to college. I don't say he got nothing out of it; but here he is back in Pine Ridge running a dairy ranch! Tell me, child, has your father really lost his money?"

"Most of it. I'm afraid. We're renting the city house and the family will live at Edgemore for the present."

"Where Edgemore?"

"About twenty-five miles from town. It's Mother's old home, but Aunt Judy owns it. She won't let Dad pay a cent for it."

"Who's Aunt Judy?"

"I forgot you didn't know all about us," replied the girl. "Aunt Judy is mother's younger sister. She lived with us for years, and took care of us children when we were little."

"And Louise, your father's sister, lives with you too?"

"Yes. She teaches in a very high-grade girls' school."

"High-hat," echoed Cousin Columbine, plainly mystified.

Nancy laughed, and explained: "That's only slang. Perhaps it's an Eastern variety that hasn't reached Pine Ridge. It means swell, Cousin Columbine—awfully stylish, you know. Aunt Louise is clever. She's earned a good salary for years."

"Well, we live to learn," admitted the old lady briskly. "High-hat! It's really expressive when you come to analyze it. So you're three families under the same roof. I should think you'd fight like cats and dogs."

The girl laughed again.

"We don't, honestly; though Aunt Louise thinks Aunt Judy spoils us."

and sometimes they scrap about it—that is, as much as any one can scrap with Aunt Judy.

"It's plain to see which is the favorite aunt, my dear!"

"But you mustn't think we don't appreciate Aunt Louise," spoke up Nancy quickly. "She's a dear; but Aunt Judy understands us better and takes our side. If Aunt Louise had had her way we'd never in this world have seen Pike's Peak!"

Her eyes crept upward to the snow-capped mountain, and the old lady asked: "Was it worth the journey?"

"It's wonderful! From the train it was the least bit disappointing, perhaps because we were so far away; but here it's marvelous and—and so near!"

"That's only the atmosphere. Will you believe it, tourists here in Colorado Springs have been known to start out before breakfast thinking they could walk to the base and get back in an hour! Everything looks nearer than it is—even the stars. But I like the Peak better from our side, my dear, and I think you will, too. There are those boys. They're certainly taking their time. So your Aunt Louise opposed your coming? Will you explain why?"

Nancy colored a little, something which did not escape the shrewd old eyes.

"She—well, she said Jack was too impressionable. I guess she thought work on a ranch—going 'round all day with rough men and boys would—would spoil his manners."

Cousin Columbine stiffened.

"Did she indeed? And what about yourself?"

"These frank cross-questions were disconcerting; but the girl said honestly: "She thought I'd be homesick, and I dare say she's right; but as Mother pointed out, things wouldn't be very thrilling at Edgemore. You see, I've always spent winters in the city; and this year..."

"Well," prodded the old lady, as she paused.

"I only mean," Nancy hesitated, thinking it might sound foolish to an inhabitant of Pine Ridge, Colorado, "that if Dad hadn't lost his money I'd have made my debut this winter."

"Well, his losses saved you from that, anyway," was the brusque reply. "Here come the boys at last. Mark Adam, did you say? Those pesky cousins! You're been gone long enough."

"Not only camed, but picked 'em," he retorted. "Why didn't you let Matt cart this stuff, Miss Columbine? I'll have to tie it on the running board."

"You'll do no such thing! Put it right in here and I'll set my feet on it. There! I'm comfortable as can be. Truth is, I intended asking Matt to get this box, but it slipped my mind when I saw he was in such a hurry to get away from us. Did you boys have a soda at the drug store? You must have been somewhere this twenty minutes."

"It was only polite for me to give your company a treat, Miss Columbine," explained Mark as he started the engine. "What next? Do we head for home?"

"At once; and don't attempt to leave everybody else behind, even if you are the best driver in Pine Ridge. I understand you told Juanita, Tubbs that you could drive up Ute Pass with the car and the motorcycle into the bargain. I was surprised, Mark Adam, to find you'd added boasting to your other sins."

Mark laughed and answered: "You know me better, Miss Columbine. That was only for Juanita's benefit. Since her cousin from Colorado won the motorcycle race up the Peak last fall, that girl has put on airs."

"She'll be putting on black more likely, if he attempts to win another year," sniffed Miss Columbine. "Such races ought to be prohibited by law. We've headed right into the mountains now, Nancy. This part of town was settled before the Springs, and the Territorial Legislature met here in 1862 with nothing but a log room for their House of Representatives."

"Was there any hotel for the men to stay at?" questioned Jack, for whom the details of United States history held a lure.

"Only a tavern made of logs, not nearly big enough to accommodate them. Some had to sleep on the floor of the assembly room; and one member brought his family and set up housekeeping in a tent."

"But surely you don't remember those days, Cousin Columbine," said Nancy.

"Well, hardly!" chuckled the old lady. "But mark me, the time I heard my father tell about it. One day he came down to get a look at the great men, and found a Chief Justice squatting before the fireplace frying bacon!"

"How'd they get here if they came from a distance?" put in Jack. "Oh, horseback!"

"Most of them; but they came in wagons too, or in that fashioned covered land stage coaches drawn by mules. One member tramped over a hundred miles through the mountains, and arrived with a boot on one foot, a brogan on the other, and wearing an old slouch hat he'd slept in with the brim half gone."

"What was he supposed to represent?" Mark Adam asked over his shoulder. "A rumpage sale?"

"It doesn't matter," replied Miss Columbine briskly, "because he was elected speaker of the House; and those who heard that speech never forgot it. A fine orator was George Crocker; and he came from Massachusetts, I believe. There was something thrilling about the struggle of those old days which you young folk'll never realize. See those tall red cliffs over to the right, Jack? That's the entrance to the Garden of the Gods."

"Is it?"

In his excitement the boy would have stood up for a better view, but Nancy's bag across his knees prevented him.

"I remember my father bringing me down on horseback when I was a tiny girl," said Cousin Columbine. "I sat astride in front of him and we rode all through the Garden looking for cattle. It was vacant land then, and Father was so impressed with the rock formation that he considered pre-empting it, and then gave up the idea, thinking the land worthless."

"Imagine owning the Garden of the Gods!"

"It has as long as I remember; but the early settlers called the place Red Rocks. No need to encourage a stiff neck, Jack, by trying to see out of the back of your head. We'll all drive down some day and explore the Garden."

If the West had seemed wonderful from a car window, it was thrice wonderful from Mark Adam's dilapidated Ford. The young Nelsons were never to forget that ride. As they wound up the old Indian pass, a good road now, though narrow enough in spots to cause a shiver to run down Nancy's eastern-bred spine, it would have been impossible to express just what they felt. Such spectacular beauty was new to both of them. Glimpses of rushing water far below—the rocky cliffs and bill-lands far above—sharp curves appearing with "alarming" frequency; and over everything a sky a deep, deep azure such as they had not imagined, was as Nancy wrote the family later, too wonderful for any words of hers.

"There!" exclaimed Cousin Columbine when those impressive cliffs were left behind, "that's over safely. Time was when that pass was really dangerous. It's a boulevard now compared with those days. Thanks for blowing the horn so often, Mark. I know you did it for my benefit, though my worst enemy never called me nervous. There's Matthew drawn up beside the road. Do you suppose he's had a breakdown? That truck of yours is getting pretty ancient."

"There's plenty of life in that old truck yet," defended Mark. "All my bashful brother wants, most likely, is for us to get home first so he won't have to describe these—er—newcomers to Aurora Tubbs. Matt says Aurora takes away his power of speech when she slings questions at him. He says it's no wonder Victor Tubbs went into a decline. Hi, there, Matt! Want us to tow you home?"

The older Adam smiled a negative as they passed; and Nancy said: "Doesn't your brother ever wear a hat?"

"Not so's you'd notice it. Dad says that all Matt learned in college—going bare-headed."

Mark turned to throw a smile at Nancy and barely escaped colliding with a rock.

"Mind your driving," ordered Miss Columbine.

"Yes, ma'am," replied the youth with meekness; and turned his head again, this time to wink.

The winter's day had seemed almost balmy to the New Englanders; but as they reached more open country and the shadows of afternoon began to deepen, Nancy was uncomfortably conscious of the changed atmosphere and lack of lap robe. Thus it was a relief when Cousin Columbine announced that they were nearly home.

"Stop after you cross the track, Mark, and let them get a good look at the Peak from this side—our side, I call it. You see, I've lived in the shadow of that mountain since the day I was born, and it seems to belong to me."

Mark nodded, crossed the track, turned sharp to the left and stopped the car, while Nancy uttered a cry of genuine delight. Cousin Columbine had not exaggerated. Pike's Peak was beautiful from here, its snowy crest lifting above a forest of dark pines. Said Jack, after an awed moment: "That's great, isn't it?"

"I'm glad to see that you appreciate nature, for it's all I have to offer except hospitality. This is Pine Ridge, my dears. I dare say it looks provincial to you; but it's home to me!"

Home! Nancy's eyes strayed from the mountain, and with difficulty she suppressed another exclamation—one of dismay. Pine Ridge! Why it was nothing but a struggling, dusty street! Had they travelled two thousand miles in order to spend weeks, months, goodness knows how long, in such a spot? The grandeur of the mountain was forgotten in that desperate moment. All the girl's thoughts were of the forlorn frame buildings, their elusive fronts rising deceptively to the height of an imaginary second story, their clapboards bare of paint, their porches sagging.

PICTURE

A white lane goes into the west,
A lane that leads to the great hills' crest.
Black pines stand up against the sun's
Bright golden cup.
Among the trees
Bold blackbirds wing;
Black branches sway,
Black needles swing.
The white road gleams
In day's last light;
Not gold, but white.

Successful Surgery

Completes Most Delicate Operation Known To Medical Science

A delicate brain operation, doctors believe, will restore Ivan Olsen, 10-year-old accident victim, to normal health.

Performed in the University hospital at Edmonton, the operation involved "scraping" the brain. This removed pressure on the brain and certain degeneration of the tissues.

Prior to the operation, young Olsen had been in a semi-comatose condition for three months in the hospital. The youngster suffered head injuries when he was thrown and dragged by a horse.

British research shows that chilled beef can be held in good condition 60 to 70 days in an atmosphere containing 10 to 20 per cent. of carbon dioxide.

The Inefficient Driver

Is One Who Ignores Common Courtesy Of The Road

It is true, as we all know, that many persons, otherwise polite and considerate, when put at the wheel of an automobile become seized of the obsession that they are lords—or mistresses—of creation, have rights superior to the rights of common people who walk, need have no regard for the ordinary rules of courteous conduct. It is a pity, but such is the fact, and in this fact lies the explanation of many an accident.

There are women who drive in the placid assumption that male drivers will accord them right of way under all circumstances; that a motor car driven by a woman just naturally is shown the courtesies extended to a lady in her drawing-room.

There are men who use the public thoroughfares as though they were private roads on their country estates. Courtesy? That's for the other fellow. Common sense? A protective device for incompetent drivers, they think. Each of these chaps sets himself up as a king of the highway and let traffic beware!

Some drivers offend in ignorance of the decent conventions of motoring, and good might be accomplished by an official admonition to those receiving their first permits. They should be told to use the horn sparingly—that excessive use is an offense under the law. It should be impressed upon them that all elements in traffic have equal rights, and that the good driver, even possessing right of way, makes due allowance for pedestrians as the weaker party—for cases of pedestrians damaging automobiles are as rare as cases of automobiles breaking up railway locomotives.

It should be made very plain to them that efficiency in driving a motor car should be sought as keenly, and prized as highly, as efficiency at bridge or golf or making pies—that the competent driver simply does not have accidents, and does not startle people out of a year's growth.

Unfortunately it is not only the new drivers who need to be reminded of these things. Many men and women have operated motor vehicles for years and still lack even the most elementary qualifications of efficiency. For them there isn't much hope of change. They go on, with such luck as may be, and we must hope for the best. But from the youngsters coming along to the wheel boys and girls motor-conscious from their first years of understanding, something better should be expected.—Ottawa Journal.

Stamp Collector Was Lucky

Found Priceless Stamp in Lot He Bought For Small Sum

A rarity of philately—the one penny Shakespearean stamp issued in Great Britain—was discovered by Charles A. Davis of Dorchester, Mass., while looking through a large collection of 19th century stamps he purchased 10 years ago for a "song."

The stamp, bearing a likeness of the Bard of Avon, clean and undamaged, is virtually priceless. It is the only known copy in America, and one of few throughout the world.

It was among the British local stamps, issued by the National Carriers Co. some time between 1873 and 1875. These stamps were used by private concerns which carried mail and packages in competition with government mails, and come under the heading of "local" stamps.

These stamps were part of a large stock which Davis bought for $25.

Although they told the judge they hadn't been able to eat the fish because the cook could not make them palatable, the magistrate sentenced the thieves to two months' hard labor.

The home merchant. Who is he? He is the chap who gives you credit when you are financially broke; and carries your account until you are able to pay. He is the chap who gives you back your money or makes exchanges when you are not satisfied with what you have bought. He is the chap who stands behind the guarantee and makes restoration of all losses that you may sustain on the goods you buy. CHISELLING BE.

COMES CONTAGIOUS

Press reports told of the recent seizure of 480 speckled trout by wardens of the Ontario Dept. of Game and Fisheries. Only three of these 480 fish measured up to the seven inch legal catch limit. One man had upwards of 200 of the undersized trout, all of them last year's fish, and many of them were no larger than sardines. For that reason it was impossible to have them consumed even by charitable institutions.

"This is one of the worst cases of gameganging I have ever run across and enough to break a true sportsman's heart," said the Deputy Minister of Game and Fisheries.

This is just another indication of the depths to which the "chiseller" can sink. Because he thinks he can get away with it—even in the field of amateur sport which has been notably free of the virus which has nearly paralyzed business—the chiseller stops at nothing. It is to be hoped that true sportsmen quickly apply the proper remedy to any who try to invade their ranks while employing such dastardly unsportsmanlike tactics as did these anglers.

Such chisellers have no conscience whatever. They must continuously be under the watchful eye of a policeman if decent citizens are to be protected. The chiseller is common in business and is found among many other interests as well. Canada is undoubtedly a land of great opportunity, but for that reason it will also become a land of great opportunity for the opportunist, the exploiter and the chiseller. Our great potential wealth has its dangers in that it is bound to attract a large proportion

THE CONVERSION OF RUSSIA

Nations must live and let live. The horror excited in the minds of English-speaking people by the excesses of the Russian revolution has not died down, and the friendliness of the recent conversations in Moscow, may surprise many. But government is "settling" in Russia; a form of government has been accepted by the Russians, and the other powers have no right to dictate to them in the matter. The theory of Communism is not strictly adhered to; it has been found impracticable, and in the course of the evolution of a workable and durable system it will disappear. It is uninformed theorists outside of Russia who imagine that Communism has been a success in the Soviet Republic. The probability is that Russia in good time will be fiercely fighting the Communists.—The Australian.

THERE TO STAY

While (Russia apart) there has been in the last few years no tendency towards an increase in the number of women in employment, the apparent stagnation masks great changes. Women are leaving agriculture in most countries, a movement that one suggests is sound economically, since it is in part the reflection of advancing mechanization, and sound socially, for it means that women are leaving work that is often (especially in the peasant countries) excessively hard and exhausting for work more suited to their physique. In other industries, particularly the light industries, commerce, and non-manual occupations, women's employment has been steadily increasing. The evidence of a sex war and of the ousting of men from jobs by women does not, in any general sense, exist, and the attempts to divert women from employment in the supposed interests of men find their ground only in the desperation of the depression.—Manchester Guardian.

WHAT MAKES A MAN
POPULAR OR UNPOPULAR
UNLAWFUL OR OTHERS?

All of us know that there are certain people we avoid. For some we have a definite reason for our dislike, and for others—well, we know we just don't like them and let it go at that.

We just happened to run across an old copy of the American Magazine in which a Mr. Ravage gives ten mighty good reasons to follow if you really want folks to leave you alone. Here they are, but our advice is, don't follow them if you want to be happy.

1. "I don't agree with you at all." Insist upon starting a discussion when the other fellow was only saying something to make conversation.

2. "I don't like your friend." Offer unsolicited and critical comment about a man's friends, or some member of his family. His wife or child will do.

3. "Anybody could do that." Minimize other people's accomplishments, especially those they are proud of.

4. "I know better." Offer authoritative information on every topic that comes up. The nearer right you are, the surer you are to be disliked.

5. "I'll tell you exactly where you failed." Analyze your friend's mistakes when he is trying to forget them.

6. "As I was saying." Insist on dragging in your favorite topic among people interested in something else. If you can give it an air of being a subject that the group are too stupid or ignorant to follow, so much the better.

7. "I thought you were going to do what you said." Remind people of promises they made impulsively or out of good fellowship, but which you know they cannot keep.

8. "Let me show you how." Insist on holding the centre of the stage.

9. "I used to think the same way a while back." Throw a wet blanket on other people's enthusiasm. If you can make it appear that their taste is antiquated, they will appreciate it all the more.

Bright Stories about Wine

THE FAMOUS CONCORD GRAPE

Probably seventy per cent. of the wine made in Canada comes from the Concord grape. This is the grape which most people think of when they think of a bunch of grapes. It is the grape of the deep blue color with heavy bloom, and, while it is not the best table grape, it is the most popular. In fact, the experts declare that it is not high in quality, and has the foxy taste we mentioned in a previous article. But the bunches are of good size, regular and well filled. Its flavor appeals to people who are fond of grapes, but from a commercial point of view it fails, because it does not keep or ship well compared with some other varieties.

It is wholly lacking in Vinifera blood, and is pure Labrusca. That is to say, it is wholly North American and owes nothing to any European crossing. It is thus an essentially different grape from the grapes that produce European wines. That may be one reason why persons used to the wines of Europe do not naturally admire our own native wines. On the other hand, those who like Canadian wines are as likely as not to find something lacking in the more renowned vintages of the old world. We naturally have no apologies to make for the fine wines that are derived from the Concord grape. It is the foundation of the Canadian wine trade.

The Concord takes its name from the place of its origin, Concord, Mass., one of the New England towns of special historical significance. A Mr. E. W. Bull found a wild grape-seed and planted it in 1843. Eleven years later, it was introduced to the Niagara peninsula. One of its great advantages is that it can be grown on almost any soil, and ripens early enough to contain the rich sugar content required for sound wine.

ed up beside the town policeman. "What's all this about?" asked the chief gruffly. "I say," said the boy, "if you saw a little boy getting hurt, would you interfere?" The policeman looked very important just then. "Of course, my lad," he said quickly.

"Well, will you come along with me, please?" said the boy. "Dad is waiting for me at the front door with a strap!"

The accompanying chart shows how the price of gasoline to the retailer has decreased and the gasoline tax has increased since 1924. The data for this graph are based on figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

FALLING PRICES—RISING TAXES

IN 1924 the average price to the retailer of all gasoline sold in Canada was 26.6 cents per Imperial gallon. Since 1924 the price has fallen almost continuously and for 1933 and 1934 it stood at 18.8 cents—nearly eight cents less than in 1924.

"But," you say, "gasoline does not cost me eight cents less a gallon than ten years ago."

You are right, and this is why:

In 1924 the gasoline tax was new in Canada and the total gasoline tax collected in that year amounted to an average of only a little more than ¼ of one cent for each gallon consumed. But as the price of gasoline fell the tax on gasoline rose to higher and higher levels until in 1933 it amounted to nearly 5½ cents for each gallon consumed in Canada.

When you buy a gallon of Imperial gasoline you also pay other taxes totalling about 8/10 of one cent. The profit which Imperial Oil earned on each gallon of gasoline that it made and sold during 1934 was just over 5/10 of one cent per Imperial gallon.

Two robberies took place here on Saturday night or early Sunday morning, when the Busy Store entrance was forced and the postoffice, which is in the same building, was robbed. The Imperial Oil warehouse was also broken open, but it is impossible as yet to say what the loss is.

The safe in the postoffice was blown, and the money in the cash drawer taken. Constable Bull, of the R.C. M.P., is in charge of the investigation. The Chinese Cafe owner was awakened at 3:30 a.m. by the noise of the explosion, but did not realize what it was. Some damage was done in the store to hardware stock, which was near the safe. So far, the police say there are no suspects.

LIBERTY'S CANADIAN HALL OF FAME No. 3

Stephen Butler Leacock, economist and humorist, noted for his humor and paid four times as much for it by those who love to read it than for the economy by the students of McGill University, where he heads the Department of Political Economy. Sixty-five a native of England, he stands five foot eight. He has thick iron gray hair and a Groucho Marx mustache. He believes women should never vote out of respect for women. They don't in Quebec, the only place in the Empire where women have to vote. Wears a widely discussed conklin coat the pride of all antiquarians and the envy of many a museum. Eight generations of moths have been born in it. Likes Mark Twain and Charles Dickens and has written about both. Will be best remembered for Nonsense Novels of twenty years or more ago. Writes in the morning, lectures after lunch, joins the boys after dinner. Glad he chucked farming to teach school.

ROYAL HAMILTON

LIGHT INFANTRY

Before many months have passed, Hamiltonians may once again see the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry on parade, clothed in all the glory of red coats.

Major F. C. Thomson, M.C. officer commanding the regiment, announced this morning that plans had been formulated some time ago for the purchase of full dress and that the clothing would be bought in the near future. The uniforms will be purchased from stocks which the government has on hand, it was intimated, and a special fund of the regiment would be used to pay for the jackets and trousers.

Major Thomson said that the regiment would not make a practice of parading in the colored uniforms as it was necessary for special permission to be obtained from the district officer commanding before such a parade could be held.

"We must parade in scarlet for annual inspections, our own church parade or functions of like nature," he said. "That is a detail which would have to be arranged. The present khaki dress would be used for all other parades."

At the present time, only the two bands of the regiment are equipped with full dress. For general purposes, the regiment has not appeared in scarlet since the war, except during the diamond jubilee of Confederation, when all ranks wore the full dress.

The department of national defence no longer issues colored uniforms to any unit in Canada. In cases where colored uniforms are in possession of regiments, such clothing has been purchased by the individual unit concerned. Gradually, however, as funds permit, units are making purchases, and, in course of time, it may be that nearly all the units in the militia will be able to parade in full dress on state occasions. At present, full dress is simply the field service khaki, with men wearing their medals and decorations.

HOUSE HUNTING

A young couple, about to be married, were looking for a house in the country. During the return trip, the young lady was very thoughtful, and when asked the reason for her silence, she replied: "Did you notice the w.c.?" He, not having noticed it, wrote the landlord, enquiring where the w.c. was located. The landlord did not know what the letters w.c. stood for, and came to the conclusion it was the Wesley church, and replied as follows:

"Dear Sir—I regret very much the delay in replying to your letter, but have pleasure in informing you that the w.c. is situated nine miles from the house, and is capable of seating 240 people. This, I imagine, is unfortunate for you if you are in the habit of going regularly, but you will be glad to know that a number of people take their lunch and make a day of it. Others who can not spare the time go by auto, but generally they are in such a hurry they can not wait. The last time I went was six years ago. My wife and I had to stand all the time. It may interest you to know, also, that a bazaar is to be held to furnish plush seats, as the members feel this is a long-felt need. I may mention that it pains me not to be able to go more often."—Farmer Brown.

"Dad," said John, "what is a superhuman?"

"He's one, my son," replied dad, "who can still think of it as a pleasure car while changing a tire in a rain storm."

Look Ahead And Prepare

Conditions in Western Canada, considering the whole area of the prairie provinces, present a changed picture this year to that of several years past, and the change is almost entirely due to the weatherman. With the exception of comparatively small tracts, the great grain producing area of southern Saskatchewan which in recent years has suffered a lack of moisture has been favored with copious falls of rain, and Nature has thus largely solved a problem which all Governments and individuals, despite the expenditure of tens of millions of dollars, could barely cope with and certainly could not solve.

At the time of writing—which is ten days or so before this will appear in print—prospects are not only favorable for a normal, possibly an above normal, crop, but the big problem of feed and fodder for livestock, solved as the soil is again saturated with moisture, sloughs and creeks filled with water, and grass again covers the ground. Admittedly it is too early yet to assume that present favorable conditions will not suffer some setbacks, and it would be a mistake to take too much for granted in a country where conditions change so quickly. At the moment, however, prospects are bright, and the foundation laid by May and June rains is such as to make a decided improvement almost a certainty.

Confidence in the country is being restored and hope is returning to many who had nearly abandoned hope and were on the verge of giving way to despair. Nature has thus provided an object lesson of how puny is man, notwithstanding his really marvelous achievements, when it comes to what are, after all, the deciding factors in the prosperity of any people or country. Man may plan, and should plan within those spheres where the decision and the control rests in his own hands, but all his planning will fail if it is not in conformity with natural laws, and takes into account what we erroneously term the vagaries of Nature.

With the experience of the past four or five years of drouth, dust storms, almost complete absence of feed and fodder, seed for a new season's sowing, and an absence of reserves accumulated in good years to tide over the poor years which always come sooner or later, what is going to be the attitude of people in this and, it is to be hoped, even expected, future better years? In those districts where there is now an abundance of moisture will the lessons of the past be remembered and steps proceeded with to conserve the surplus wherever possible and feasible? Or will people quickly forget and again live only in the present without taking thought for the future?

If Western Canada is blessed with a bountiful crop, plenty of hay and grasses, large quantities of wild fruits, vegetables, etc., will people, profiting by the past, begin at once the building up of reserves against the day when Nature may not be quite so generous in the bestowal of gifts? As Western people now look over their green and promising fields, are they planning, if the promise of those fields is fulfilled in the harvest, to conserve a little something, as much as they possibly can, as an insurance for the future? Or will they quickly forget and dispose of their last resource, trusting to the future to again take care of itself?

It is no particular criticism of any person, or class of persons in this country to say that, in many respects, we have been a wasteful people, and have not practised that frugality which would have been the part of wisdom. Practically speaking, all of us have been more or less wasteful. We have employed our resources in satisfying the desires, the ambitions, the pleasures of the moment, without giving sufficient thought to the future. In above-normal prosperous years, instead of providing some reserve in a more or less liquid form to meet future needs, we have dissipated them, or locked them up in some concrete way, or used them to expand our operations beyond what was necessary or wise. Thus seeming assets have been found to be heavy liabilities.

All have made this mistake—farmers, merchants, industrialists, financiers, municipalities, provinces, and the Dominion as a whole. Nobody can well point an accusing finger at any other person. But if we are wise, if we are capable of learning anything from past experience, surely we will now as a people, individually and collectively, recognize our past mistakes and not merely resolve not to repeat them, but proceed now to follow a different course, and, in the light of the years of plenty put by to carry us and our country through years of scarcity.

Some people in the last year or two became almost convinced that drouth and dust storms and crop failures had become a permanent condition. Those of riper experience knew better. They knew that the world has always experienced periods of plenty and periods of scarcity; that this is one of Nature's ways of maintaining an equilibrium, a safe balance. There is reason to hope the recent period of drouth and scarcity is past, and that a more fruitful period is at hand. But other periods of drouth and crop failures will inevitably come; now is the time to prepare for them because surely no person who has suffered through lack of the necessities of life in this recent period desires to pass through the same experience again.

Now is the time to take new heart, but it is also a time to think and act coolly, to keep sane, to take thought of and prepare for the future and insure oneself to the fullest extent possible against whatever misfortunes or setbacks may lie ahead.

The total shipments of certified potato seed from Canada, in 1934 amounted to 1,329,745 bushels, 728,582 bushels being shipped during the months of January to May inclusive, and 600,163 bushels from the fall to December 31.

Canadian exports of canned fruit to Great Britain were 28 per cent greater from January 1 to March 15, 1935, than during the corresponding period of 1934. The principal increases were in canned apples, pears and peaches.

Strange Discovery

Huge Mound Of Black Substance Found In Northern Saskatchewan
A peculiar rock formation in the shape of a giant dome, which is considered to indicate the presence of either natural gas or oil, has been discovered in northern Saskatchewan, some 40 miles southwest of Lac Ile a la Croix.

It consists of a huge mound of some black substance resembling low grade coal or tar sands, from the centre of which bubbles a salt spring.

Hon. T. C. Davis, K.C., attorney-general, who recently returned from an aeroplane trip over northern Saskatchewan to Lakes Athabasca and Peace, brought some of the material back with him. He is making arrangements to have it analyzed.

Originally the discovery was made by the Indians, who reported this huge mound of black substance.

Several theories respecting the presence of the mound have been advanced. One is that the salt spring bubbling from the earth has brought with it a flow of oil which over a period of years has built up the mound about the spring similar to a deposit of geyserite.

The samples brought back by Mr. Davis do not appear to be inflammable, although there is a fibrous substance permeating the sample which burns.

The giant dome from which the spring bubbles is located near Vermette lake in the vicinity of Lac la Plonge—Regina Leader.

A Marvel At Languages

Man At 81 Has Working Knowledge Of Five Hundred

A man after George Borrow's heart is George E. Hay, who, at the age of 81, has retired from the position of proofreader for a London firm which specializes in foreign publications. Mr. Hay is said to have a working knowledge of about 500 languages, but he was chiefly engaged in Oriental tongues and he corrected proofs in Sanskrit, Hindi, Urdu, Hindi, Bengali, Oriya, Tamil, Telugu, Kannada, Malayalam, Sinhalese, Burmese, Siamese, Laos, Tibetan, Arabic, Coptic, Armenian, Ethiopic and Ancient Egyptian, also Chinese, Syrian, Greek and Hebrew.

As a boy he only had an elementary education, so that all these accomplishments were acquired by evening classes and by reading in museums and the London School of Oriental Languages. Primarily, he owed his success to a marvellous memory.

Even now that he has retired his recreation is studying languages.

And there are millions of people who have little more than a working knowledge of one language.

Matter Is Settled

Science Service Estimates Superior Is World's Largest Lake

A year or so ago the News-Chronicle entered into a discussion of the comparative sizes of Lake Superior and Lake Victoria Nyanza in Africa. Some, including some school teachers, advising their pupils, had declared the African lake to be larger.

Using all the information it could obtain from atlases and encyclopedias, this paper proved, to its own satisfaction at least, that Superior was the larger and thus the larger lake in the world. This was definite if depth were considered, for it appears that large portion of Victoria Nyanza's surface is only a foot or so above the bottom and much of it filled with reeds and grasses.

We now find the following paragraph among those issued by a science service for use in newspapers as something "interesting to know."

"It is estimated that Lake Superior exceeds in size its nearest fresh water rival, Africa's Lake Victoria Nyanza, by a thousand square miles."—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

To Catch Motor-Bandits

Speed Ball To Tear Tires Is Latest

A policeman of Bolton, England, has just invented a "motor-bandit stopper," which is expected to halt the worst of criminals. It is in the form of a speed ball, which, when thrown in front of a speed car, bursts open into several spikes and covers a span of six feet and guaranteed to tear the toughest tires to shreds.

COULD NOT SEW A BUTTON ON

Her Hands Were Helpless With Rheumatism

At one time she thought she would lose the use of her right hand. But "a blessing"—in the form of Kruschen Salts—put her right again. "I was sure in a bad state," she writes. "In fact, I could not do my housework. I was so bad with rheumatism in my arms and hands, I could not sleep at night, and I thought I would lose the use of my right hand. I could not hold anything, nor could I sew a button on. My arm would go dead. I was advised to try Kruschen, and inside of three weeks I found such a change. I have kept on taking it, and now I sleep all night—thanks to Kruschen's help and relief."—(Mrs.) J. H.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals, which are responsible for rheumatic agony. Other ingredients of these salts assist Nature to expel them, to realize her extraordinary kindness of heart and the way in which she never forgets anyone she has ever met or misses a chance to do a kindness. If she has been interested in any case of suffering or want, and meets persons who brought it to her notice again, it may be 20 years after, she will at once say, "And how is so-and-so? I hope everything is going on well."

In fact, anyone who will chat freely with the Queen as he would with any other lady, relying on her kindness and sympathy, will find her at once easy to get on with and charming. Her wide knowledge of the subjects that do interest her, her readiness to say when she is not an authority on any subject, her ready humor and her sincere kindness make a conversation with her a thing to remember. Her chief interest in life now is undoubtedly the little Princess Elizabeth. She is wrapped up in her, and no wonder; for a more charming little girl or one more completely unspoiled by her high position, it would be impossible to meet.

Open expression of this determination was given by the Boersen Zeitung in a dispatch from Hamburg.

"It is not unlikely," the dispatch said, "that the (Italian liner) or Bremen or Europa have still some horsepower in reserve with which they may give the Normandie a surprise."

That the two German vessels have never used their top speed in their regular runs have been holding back for just such competition as the Normandie or the Cunard-White Star Queen Mary is a story that always has been believed in Germany—with what justification remains to be seen.

Animals Like To Play

Even Clumsy Polar Bears Are Great Fun Malers

Almost any time is play time with monkeys. Give a monkey a musical instrument and he will play for hours.

Another monkey delight is to dress up and act like a human. One keeper at the London Zoo trained four young chimpanzees so well that they will take a meal at a table from the plates and mugs, and pass everything round as politely as can be.

The Polar bears are also great fun-makers. The crew of a whaling ship once watched two bears playing on an ice floe. The main idea in their game was to push and scramble about at the edge of the ice until one was pushed into the water.

Immediately the other bear would jump in beside him, and there would be another tussle until one was forced back to the ice. The winner would then scramble out, and the game would start over again.

MECCA OINTMENT
THE FAMILY FRIEND

Queen Likes Natural Folks

Not Reserved If People Chat With Her Freely

In the Jubilee number of The Manchester Guardian a contributor writes about Queen Mary this way:

"The Queen's mind is powerful rather than quick. She once said to a friend, 'I find it a great effort to think of something fresh to say to everyone I meet.' The friend replied, 'Oh, your Majesty should not try. If I were in your place I should think of something nice to say when I got out of bed and say it to everyone I met that day.' But the Queen replied, 'Oh no, you would not. The press would get hold of it and say that you were insincere.' Whatever else anyone said of the Queen it would be impossible to call her insincere.

At a first meeting people often leave all the conversation to her Majesty and so find her difficult to get on with and think her reserved. Very slight acquaintance, however, helps them to realize her extraordinary kindness of heart and the way in which she never forgets anyone she has ever met or misses a chance to do a kindness. If she has been interested in any case of suffering or want, and meets persons who brought it to her notice again, it may be 20 years after, she will at once say, 'And how is so-and-so? I hope everything is going on well.'

In fact, anyone who will chat freely with the Queen as he would with any other lady, relying on her kindness and sympathy, will find her at once easy to get on with and charming. Her wide knowledge of the subjects that do interest her, her readiness to say when she is not an authority on any subject, her ready humor and her sincere kindness make a conversation with her a thing to remember. Her chief interest in life now is undoubtedly the little Princess Elizabeth. She is wrapped up in her, and no wonder; for a more charming little girl or one more completely unspoiled by her high position, it would be impossible to meet.

Charged With Writing Anti-Italian Articles

Italy Has Expelled Rome Correspondent Of Chicago Tribune

The Italian government press bureau has expelled David Darrah, the Rome correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. Darrah and his wife were forced to leave immediately. The reason for Darrah's expulsion was given as the writing of anti-Italian articles.

The bureau also issued an order banning all further notice of the entrance of copies of the New York Times to Italy as a result of an editorial entitled "Baldwin and Mussolini."

The editorial appeared in the Times after recent speeches of Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy.

The action against the New York newspaper follows a similar one against a group of English newspapers, including the Manchester Guardian, for lifting of a ban against German newspapers, including the Nazi organ, the Voelkischer Beobachter.

Silver Boom In Yukon

Miners Are Pouring In To Camp At Mayo

By air, land and water oldtimers and newcomers are hitting the trails back to the rich silver camp at Mayo, Yukon Territory, which is showing signs of returning to old-time activity on the crest of rising silver prices. Today every available house, cabin and shack in Mayo has been taken up by the influx of miners. Large silver operators are tuning up their equipment preparatory to getting underway by plane, while individual claim owners have started already to get out ore for summer shipment.

New Air Conditioner

An air conditioner costing so little it is within the means of the average householder was described to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers in Toronto by W. A. Stark, Cleveland. The conditioner uses a porous sand known as silica gel, which absorbs water vapours from the air and poisons from the human system.

The human scalp has approximately 1,000 hairs to the square inch, the average head containing 110,000 hairs. Women have a higher average than men, while red heads average only 90,000.

Makes Testing Safer

Spinning Device Determines Whether Auto Wheels Need Adjusting
Eliminating hazardous road tests for "shimmy" and wobble, a dynamic spinning device subjects each wheel to a similar test without removing the car from the repair shop. The machine consists of a spinner wheel mounted on the shaft of an electric motor and carried on a small rubber-tired dolly. The speed of the motor is controlled from the end of a tubular handle like a vacuum cleaner. The spin of the wheel is from side to side for adjustment to the plane of the cambered auto wheel so that the tire will not be damaged. The test is made with the wheel on the spindle, each wheel being jacked up and spun with the machine. The motor quickly accelerates the wheel to eighty or 100 miles an hour. When the shimmy speed is reached the whole car shakes violently, indicating the wheel is out of balance and that it should be removed and trued up.—Popular Mechanics.

Choir Boys Liked Tour

Twelve Youngsters Return To London After Tour Of Canada And U.S.

Soda-fountain chocolate milkshakes made a deep impression on all but one of 12 youngsters of the London choir school who returned to England from a concert tour in Canada and the United States.

The young choristers expounded their views on the United States and Canada in epigrammatic fashion, with food the predominant note. "Chocolate milkshake is a marvelous drink," one of them said. "I don't suppose I'll be able to get anything like it over here."

WOULD STUDY PLAN TO AMEND THE B. N. A. ACT

Ottawa. — A Dominion-provincial conference to be held as early as possible this year to study methods of amending the British North America Act was recommended in a house committee report tabled in the commons. The report was presented by F. W. Turnbull (Cons., Regina), chairman of the committee.

"The committee recognized the urgent necessity for prompt consideration of amendments to the British North America Act, with reference to a redistribution of legislative power and to clarify the field of taxation," the report declared.

The committee sent telegrams to the attorneys-general of the nine provinces asking them to make submissions on the "best method by which the British North America Act may be amended so that it may safeguard existing rights of racial and religious minorities and legitimate provincial claims to autonomy, the Dominion government may be given adequate power to deal effectively with urgent economic problems which are essentially national in scope."

The provinces declined to make submissions, several taking the view it was only by a conference that progress could be made. Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia took this position. New Brunswick promised to submit its views but has not yet done so. Ontario declined to make submissions at the present time.

"The committee recognizes," the report declared, "that there is a divergence of opinion with respect to the question of whether or not the British North America Act is a statutory recognition of a compact among the four original provinces of the Dominion and as to the necessity or otherwise of provincial concurrence in amendments."

"Without expressing any opinion upon that question, the committee feel that in the present case and at the present time it is advisable in the interest of harmony and unity that there should be consultation with the provinces with respect to the adoption of a definite mode of amendment or the enactment of amending legislation which might seriously alter the legislative jurisdiction of the provinces and the Dominion."

King To Inspect Aircraft

Five Miles Of Planes Will Form In Eight Rows

London.—Five miles of aircraft—the largest concentration ever brought together in Britain—will be reviewed by the king at Mildenhall, Suffolk, July 6.

His Majesty, wearing the uniform of marshal of the Royal Air Force, will inspect about 350 aircraft and their personnel, drawn from nearly 40 squadrons. These will be followed by a "fly past" over Duxford aerodrome, Cambridgeshire, of the greater part of these units in formation.

For the inspection the assembled squadrons will be drawn up in review formation in eight rows. The king will drive slowly along the semi-circular lines of aircraft. His tour will occupy nearly three-quarters of an hour.

Eight-Hour Day

Railways Given Nine Months To Comply With New Law

Ottawa.—Canadian railways were given nine months in which to prepare agreements with their employees to institute a general eight-hour day in conformity with the Dominion's new law.

The House of Commons passed amending amendments to the eight-hour-day bill which were technical in nature except one. Under it, the act will have general application three months after royal assent but railway companies will be given an extra six months because of the difficulty of negotiating agreements with all their union men.

Change Was Approved

Ottawa.—The House of Commons took less than two minutes to give second and third readings and consideration in committee stage of a technical change in the delinquency laws. The bill originated in the senate and was requested by children aid societies. A bill making a companion change in the criminal code also was passed.

Charge Discrimination

Denial Is Made That Canada Is Unfair To U.S. Trade

Canton, N.Y.—A spirited reply to an American charge of tariff discrimination was given at the conference on Canadian-American affairs by John W. Dufosse, editor-in-chief of the Winnipeg Free Press, and two Canadian educationists—Professor Frank A. Knox, of Queen's University, and Professor Robert McQueen, of the University of Saskatchewan. Dr. Dufosse said the charge of Prof. Jacob Viner, of Chicago, that Canada, with its three-tariff system, was discriminating against the United States, had not been proved.

"Under our system of main, intermediate and empire tariff schedules," he said, "we go to other nations and offer them the intermediate rate on their goods in exchange for a preferred consideration of our wheat. The Americans with a single tariff, argue we have been unfair because we have three tariffs, and the United States is not favored by our intermediate tariff. It is our contention, however, concession should be given for concession," which has not been done under the inflexible single tariff system.

Dr. Dufosse said he believed the difficulties between the two countries could be composed if the United States did not have a single tariff system, but had variable tariffs.

Would Unite Dionne Family

Ontario Government Outlines Plan For This Purpose

Toronto.—Chief guardian of the Dionne quintuplets, Hon. David A. Craig, Ontario minister of welfare, disclosed that when he attended the babies' birthday celebration in Calander, May 28, he outlined to Olivia Dionne, their father, the government's plans to reunite the Dionne family in one large home.

"I invited Mr. Dionne to ponder the plan for a few days, then come to Toronto," said Mr. Craig. "I have not since seen Mr. Dionne."

"I want to see the Dionne family reunited and hereby ask your permission to erect for you, out of the fund accumulated, a house sufficient for yourselves and your whole family in which the quintuplets may be properly accommodated," said Mr. Craig in the letter he wrote Olivia Dionne, June 5. "The present hospital may then be used as a schoolhouse for all your children," he continued.

The offer carried only two conditions—government control of business affairs of the children and retention of Dr. Allan Roy Dufosse as the babies' physician.

Trotsky Again Disappears

Entire Party Drops Out Of Sight In Norway

Oslo, Norway.—Leon Trotsky, famed Russian exile, staged another mysterious disappearance here, dropping out of sight shortly after he arrived from Antwerp. Trotsky, his wife and two secretaries went from Oslo to Høensfoss, town of 3,000 population, where they were expected to spend six months. The entire party disappeared, however, and efforts to locate it were unavailing.

London.—The Daily Herald said Leon Trotsky, Russian exile who entered Norway is "ridden with advanced tuberculosis," and his journey to the north was "a matter of life and death."

BENNETT WILL CONTINUE TO LEAD THE GOVERNMENT

Ottawa.—Definite assurance only a breakdown in health will prevent him continuing as leader of the government was given by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at a complimentary banquet tendered him by Conservative members of the House of Commons and the senate.

It had been expected Mr. Bennett would take this occasion to convey to his parliamentary colleagues some intimation of his intention with respect to the leadership in view of the anxiety created by his recent illness.

The banquet was private and the guests confined to members of parliament who support the government.

J. Earl Lawson, Dominion organizer for the Conservative party and member for the Toronto constituency of York West, in a statement at the conclusion of the banquet, said: "Despite the fact it may mean great sacrifice of the prime minister's health, his sense of duty to the Conservative party and to his country will induce him to carry on as leader of the government."

The banquet was the first occasion on which the prime minister has met his colleagues in a body outside the House of Commons since his illness. No caucuses have been held since his return to active participation in parliamentary affairs.

When he first returned, Mr. Bennett abated his customary long hours of work and did not attend evening sessions of the house. During the past 10 days, however, he has been a constant attendant at both afternoon and evening sessions, spending the mornings in his office, and he has held a cabinet council every week day since his return from England.

Decrease In Fire Losses

Since 1934 Amount Has Decreased By Twenty Millions

Ottawa.—Fire losses in Canada in 1934 decreased by more than $20,000,000 as compared with 1933, George F. Lewis, O.B.E., Toronto, president of the Association of Canadian Fire Marshals, revealed in opening the annual conference of the association here. While fire losses as a whole had decreased in number and amount, it was disturbing to note, Mr. Lewis said, fires in dwellings have increased from 16,943 with a loss of $7,000,000 in 1924 to 23,436 with a loss of $9,957,000 in 1934.

Suggests New Commission

President Of Canadian Radio League Presents His Views

Canton, N.Y.—Graham Spry, president of the Canadian Radio League, told the conference on Canadian-American relations the Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission has failed and suggested a 15-point constitution for a new broadcasting system in the Dominion.

Mr. Spry proposed appointment of a 12-member commission by the Dominion government in consultation with the leader of the opposition and representatives of smaller groups. Three members, he said, should represent the National government and nine the provinces.

The commissioners, he said, "should not be active members of any political parties, but should include men of known sympathetic toward or generally representative of the broad principles of the three political groups."

Mr. Spry said all political parties should be given use of the national network without charge at various times during the year, and that during election campaigns, national, provincial or local, they should be offered similar free time, having the option to buy additional time if they wished.

A movement to present such a gift was launched at the meeting.

REFORMS MUST BE MADE IN A LEGAL MANNER

Ottawa.—The government has gone to the extreme limits of parliamentary power to redress the wrongs uncovered by the mass buying commission, Premier R. B. Bennett declared in the House of Commons.

The prime minister was replying to a question on the government's mass buying legislation by Hon. H. H. Stevens, former cabinet minister, who dubbed it anemic, ill-considered and ineffective.

"My own view," Mr. Bennett said, "is the constitution of this country must be changed. But it could not be accomplished in a day nor by parliament overstepping its legal bonds."

"If the people of this country," the prime minister warned, turning and facing his former cabinet colleague, "have been led to believe this parliament can do any sort of legislation it likes, the age of lawlessness is on us. Let there be no mistaking that."

If reform is to take precedence over revolution, Mr. Bennett said, changes must be made legally. "It cannot be right to induce the people to believe parliament has the power but will not exercise it through obstinacy or fear."

It was the first time the two Conservatives, who once sat chair-to-chair around the council table, have clashed in the house since Mr. Stevens' resignation.

"Amid applause from all over the chamber, Mr. Bennett repeated his assertion Canada would never become a 'welfare' on its obligations. It would be the ruin of the country if the public credit was shattered and this referred to public and provincial debts as well as dominion."

The former trade minister appeared nervous and halting when he started his speech, but warmed up as he proceeded. He claimed he remained a Conservative, and because he believed insufficient attention had been paid to the dominance of credit reservoirs and industrial monopolies, he would speak to his fellow-Conservatives in the house.

"I stand by what I then said," said Mr. Bennett, referring to his radio speeches. "The legislation we have submitted to the house, subject to what I shall say later, does implement, in so far as the powers of this parliament extend, the report of the price spreads commission."

"My view is," Mr. Bennett said, "the constitution of this country must be changed." But it was a result of compromise and could not be changed in a day. There were many considerations that must be borne in mind.

Attempts had been made in the past, by his government and the King administration, Mr. Bennett said, to obtain agreement among the provinces to constitutional changes, but no tangible results were reached.

It was futile, Mr. Bennett proceeded, for any member to argue that parliament could name anything a crime under the criminal code, because the courts had ruled otherwise. "Whether we like it or not we must consider that point."

"To the limit of the power of parliament," the prime minister said, "we have invited parliament to give redress within our competence."

REASON IS GIVEN FOR STAND TAKEN ON C.N. FINANCES

Ottawa.—Opposition to any change in the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways, while litigation was in progress before the privy council on behalf of the Grand Trunk shareholders, was emphasized by Premier R. B. Bennett in a statement in the house.

He also took the view the reports of the Canadian National should show always the investment the Canadian people had in the enterprise.

The appeal before the privy council would probably be heard next month in London, the prime minister explained. Leave to appeal was granted last March.

The statement was the result of a question by Ross W. Gray (Lib., Lambton West) following a hearing some time ago before the house railway committee. At that hearing, C. P. Fullerton, president of the Canadian National trustees, had given evidence relating to a letter the prime minister had written objecting to cutting down the capitalization.

"To disturb the capital stock as it now stands, might in the long run eventually be a matter of some moment to the Dominion of Canada who are the shareholders," said the prime minister, "and I desire on that ground to make it clear why I do not desire, until this litigation is disposed of, any change in the capital structure. But in so far as the reduction of the capital stock, as such, is concerned, when the time comes, to the figure that represents the investment, I have nothing to say; but I do submit that most of us are anxious there should appear in the report of the Canadian National something that indicates what the investment of the Canadian people in the enterprise may be."

Discover New Vitamin

Canadian Laboratory Tests Produce Results Which May Assist In Control Of Disease

Toronto.—Discovery of a vitamin which may play a part in the further control of diabetes was credited here to Dr. C. H. Best, professor of physiology in the University of Toronto and associate of Sir Frederick Banting in discovery of insulin.

Collaborating with Dr. Best were Dr. J. M. Hershey, chief chemist in the university's insulin testing laboratory, and Miss M. E. Huntman, professor of marine biology.

The essential chemical of the new vitamin is choline, which is the name given by the discoverers. Choline was discovered in the course of insulin investigations.

Newspapers Will Not Have To Publish Shareholders' Names

Ottawa.—Marking its seventh failure in 10 years, the bill of T. L. Church (Cons., Toronto East) to compel newspapers to publish names of their shareholders was thrown out by the senate. With Senator James Murdoch (Lib., Parkdale) sole dissenter, the upper house adopted the report of its banking and commerce committee rejecting the measure as "ineffective to attain its purpose."

It was not the B.E.S.L. that took such action, however, but the Blairmore Miners' Union.

A story was told through the Calgary Herald of what is believed to be the largest fish on record. It was picked up dead beside a three-foot-deep pool, with the hind half off a yearling steer projecting from its mouth. The early half of the steer had butted in so far that the horns pierced through the back of the fish, making it rather uncomfortable; and in swimming both horns were so located that in three feet of water they would easily appear above the surface. That fish sure had a "loud mouth!"

The town of Coleman was named in 1904 by A. C. Flumfelt, president of the International Coal & Coke Co., after his youngest daughter. Blairmore was named after two railway contractors several years previous. Frank was named after H. L. Frank, who opened the first mine there in 1901. The name of Pincher was used in surveyors' reports dated 1880. Dawson gives the Blackfoot name as in-oks-spitz, or "little highwood river," so named because a man lost a pair of horseshoe pinners (pinchers) there, hence Pincher Creek.

Second P. (plainly unimpressed): "Uh."

First P: "Yes, in two days and four hours. It's amazing!"

Second P: "Oh, I dunno. It's a doon hill!"

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED

When the other fellow is set in his way, he's obstinate; when you are, it is just firmness? When the other fellow doesn't like your friends, he's prejudiced; when you don't like his, you are simply showing that you are a good judge of human nature?

When the other fellow tries to treat someone especially well, he is toadying; when you try the same game, you are using tact? When the other fellow picks flaws in things, he's cranky; when you do, you are discriminating? When the other fellow says what he thinks, he's spiteful; when you do, you are frank?
